1. What is your overall level of satisfaction with Cuidi's Red Beans and Rice newsletter? -

Answer Respondent

Sample of Statements:

I like the topics and useful links provided on the newsletter.
It's good quality, highly relevant and a professional format.
Great, quick read to support my work - many pearls of wisdom and resources
I enjoy reading it and I forward it to other people.
Best of anything I've seen -- it's relevant, comprehensive, humorous, informed/educated ... really, really great!
It is useful...I have gone back and printed out a few articles. It does not always appear top-notch professionally done.

2. How could Red Beans and Rice better inform you on areas that interest you? - Responses

Funding opportunities!!!
It is great as is.
This is an excellent way to communicate ideas and resources.I tried to think of ways to improve it, but RB&B serves its purpose as it is. I would say just keep up the good work consistently and it will grow to a broadere audience.Congratulations John!Your friend, David Castaneda Diaz
I'm fine with it the way it is. You do a lot of the combing through for me. That's helpful.
I'm a new subscriber, so need a little more time to be able to answer this effectively. Looking forward to future issues!
Keep up the good work, John!!!
You're doing fine.
The one addition that I don't see in many of the other nonprofit or public benefit newsletters I subscribe to is a summary of new b9ook or great articles.John keep up the good work. I love my red beans and rice!
I truly don't know. It is so full of information- I just need to focus on what matters to me.
love it as is - maybe add case studies of cool NPOs doing creative work.
There's already a lot there (sometimes, a little too much), but if you wanted to add a section about graduate student opportunities (for summer fellowships/internships, or opportunities to do one-time projects), that would be cool.But it's really comprehensive as is.Keep up the good work!
I like the sampling of analytic pieces that offer a context for the New World of Philanthropy. As someone who is looking for a new job, I also am refreshed by the pieces that cover hiring trends and the struggles that nonprofit management is coping with. Thanks for the good work.
More about the "External Environment"--it's so time consuming to keep up with all the "extraneous" goings on in the east/USA that might affect our ability to help organizations cope. And you have great summaries and links!!!
Continue with the great non-profit fundraising ideas.
